A collaborative international Summit shaping the operational foundations for the world's first international Global Resource Centre to combat human trafficking

Dear Colleague,

TOGETHER LET'S STOP TRAFFICK 2015 - Breaking the Chains

Great strides have been made in the international battle to stamp out global human trafficking, not least during the 2013 and 2014 international "Together Let's Stop Traffick" Summits, held in Ottawa, Canada (November 2013) and Charles Town, West Virginia, USA (November 2014). Some of the sharpest minds from the worlds of law enforcement, intelligence, victim support, NGOs, education, transportation, the military, Homeland Security, hospitality, finance and the health sector came together at these working conferences to help define the operational blueprint for the world's first Global Resource Centre to combat human trafficking.

GREAT – the Global Resource Epicenter Against Trafficking - works in collaboration with its global network alliance, seeking to bring about a world free of human trafficking in all its forms.

"Ensuring Supply Chain Integrity" is the theme of the 2015 Summit. Respected leaders from international business, law enforcement and NGOs will share their practical experiences designing and implementing supply chain legislation in California; explore recent FBI investigations into human trafficking; highlight enforcement impacts on business, and showcase the true human cost and effects of human trafficking within the supply chain.

Speakers include Executive Editor of CNN's Freedom Project, Leif Coorlim – his third year on our team - as well as a second appearance from former California Special Attorney General Benjamin Greer. Also, Executive Director of the UK's Institute for Human Rights and Business, John Morrison; lawyer and senior legal advisor to the Netherlands Department of Labour, Peter Vonk; FBI Special Agent Ryan Blay, and UNODC Project Coordinator – South Asia, Dr. Geeta Sekhon.

A new section this year will showcase research, and we are engaging research facilities at a series of global universities to present innovative and impactful technological advances ranging from new applications for rapid DNA through to fraudulent document traceability.

The Together Let's Stop Traffick Summits are not introductory learning experiences. Rather, they call upon the knowledge, experience and skills of knowledgeable participants, active in the field, to help build the global resource and coordination centre. Every delegate participates and each has ownership.

We are therefore calling on passionate commercial champions who share our commitment, compassion and desire for justice, to join with us in safeguarding mankind's most precious resource - our fellow human beings - and stand with us in building a better, safer future for all.

Sponsors' Benefits

To maximize benefits flowing to our sponsors in return for the commitment to provide funding for early stage development, we would recommend the following actions:

- As a valued commercial partner, and allowing for a customized benefits package to be developed, we would encourage your organisation to contribute at the highest level possible.
